ALLIANCES OF OLD NEW YORK FAMILIES FIND REMINDERS IN MARRIAGES OF PRESENT WEEK

IN the incidents of the second week of the Easter season society is to have some reminders of other days in marriage alliances between families whose origins may be traced back to the very beginning of things social in New York.

The formal term of "cousinship" used as royal courtesy among reigning families since feudal days among European sovereigns may actually be applied to numerous representative families of New York as the result of marriage alliances through a century or two of local history.

In a score or more of New York families there are cousinships three or four times removed, and in recent years such family connections have been further complicated by intermarriages between persons whose progenitors thus became related in the days when New York society was a much more compact body than it is to-day.

Thus the Barclays are related to the Wards, the Wards to the Kings, the Kings to the Van Rensselaers, the Van Rensselaers to the Livingstons, the Livingstons to the Chanlers, the Chanlers to the Rutherfurds, the Rutherfurds to the Whites and the Whites to the Vanderbilts.

And now there is to be a further marriage alliance between the Rutherfurds, the Whites and the Vanderbilts that is to bring forward to social attention the house of Moffat, a family that formed a connection with this particular circle a number of years ago.

The marriage is to be that of Miss Elizabeth Barclay Moffat, daughter of the late R. Burnham Moffat and Mrs. Ellen Low Pierrepont Moffat of 12 East Sixty-sixth street, to Mr. John Campbell White, son of Mr. Henry White, onetime Ambassador to France and member of the American Peace Mission, and the late Mrs. Margaret Stuyvesant Rutherfurd White. The present Mrs. Henry White, stepmother of Mr. John Campbell White, is a daughter of the late William H. Vanderbilt and was the widow of William Douglas Sloane when she was married to Mr. White in St. Bartholomew's Church on the third of last November.

White-Moffat Relationship.

The relationship between Mr. White and Miss Moffat comes about in this wise: A Mary Rutherfurd Pierrepont, who was married to the late Rutherfurd Stuyvesant, Mr. White's uncle, was the aunt of Miss Moffat.

On December 3, 1879, Mr. Henry White married Margaret Stuyvesant Rutherfurd, daughter of Lewis Morris Rutherfurd, and Margaret S. Chanler, daughter of the Rev. John W. Chanler. She was a granddaughter of Robert Walter Rutherfurd and the great-granddaughter of John Rutherfurd, who married Helena Morris, daughter of Lewis Morris, in 1782, and founded the Rutherfurd family in New York. The first Mrs. Henry White was a sister of the late Lewis Morris Rutherfurd, who was the second husband of the present Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, and the present Mrs. William K Vanderbilt is a sister-in-law of the present Mrs. Henry White.

In this manner have the complicated family relationships of modern New York society been built up. From the same stock have sprung representatives of the Russell Peabody, Lewis Spencer Morris and Russell families and certain of the Pynes.

As to the Moffat side:

Mrs. R. Burnham Moffat (Ellen Low Pierrepont) is a daughter of the late Henry Evelyn Pierrepont, who married Ellen A. Low, daughter of the late A. A. Low and granddaughter of the Henry Evelyn Pierrepont who married Anna Maria Jay, a granddaughter of John Jay, the first Chief Justice of the United States. In Mrs. Moffat's generation there was the Mary Rutherfurd Pierrepont who married Rutherfurd Stuyvesant, and the Mr. and Mrs. Rutherfurd Stuyvesant were connected by marriage with the families of Saturday's bride and bridegroom. Mrs. Moffat's uncle, the late John Jay Pierrepont, married Elsie de Rham, daughter of Charles de Rham. In the same year that brought the marriage of Mr. Henry White and Margaret Stuyvesant Rutherfurd, thus further extending the family connection.

Miss Margaret Barclay Moffat's immediate family connections include the Misses Julia and Anna Pierrepont whose home is at 1 Pierrepont place, Columbia Heights, Brooklyn; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Low Pierrepont, who lived in another family home at 140 Columbia street, and Mr. and Mrs. Rutherfurd Stuyvesant Pierrepont, who live in Far Hills, N. J. More of her age is Mr. John Jay Pierrepont 2d, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Low Pierrepont, who has gone into the service as an ensign on board the U. S. S. Michigan. Mrs. Leo McIlvaine Luquer, who was Anna Low Pierrepont, is a sister of Mrs. Moffat.

Some of the other family connections make the north side of Washington Square so picturesque as a suggestion of a bit of old London.

Miss Harding's maid of honor will be her sister, Miss Laura Harding, a debutante of the winter, and there will be a flower girl, Betty Tailer, the small sister of the bridegroom. Mr. James W. Wallace will serve as best man and the ushers will be Lieut. Charles B. Harding, brother of the bride, and Messrs. Harry F. Peters, Robert R. Livingston, a cousin of the bridegroom; Albert Zabriskie Gray, A. J. Drexel Biddle, Jr., Brewster Jennings, Richard Van Neal Gambrill, George Temple, Bowdoin and Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr. After the ceremony, which will be performed by the Rev. Dr. Leighton Parks, there will be a reception at the home of the bride's parents.

Wellman-Smith Wedding.

In the St. Ambrose Chapel, Cathedral of St. John the Divine, on Tuesday will be celebrated the marriage of Miss Evelyn Rives Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Breese Smith of this city and Newport, to Mr. Roderic Wellman, a son of Mr. Francis L. Wellman of New York.

The bride-elect is a granddaughter of the late Francis R. Rives, who was one of the founders of the New York Coaching Club that formerly figured each spring with its parade, a feature of metropolitan life antedating the brood of automobiles. In the early days of Tuxedo Park Mr. and Mrs. Smith were identified with that colony, which of late years has grown almost to the size of a township.

The wedding guests will include a small gathering of relatives and friends and the marriage ceremony will be followed by a small reception at 307 Fifth avenue, the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. Norman J. Rives. Miss Roberts Willard of Newport will be the only bridal attendant and Mr. Allen Gouverneur Wellman will serve as his brother's best man. There will be two ushers, Justice Franklin C. Hoyt, whose wife is a cousin of the bride, and Mr. Walter Watson Stokes, a cousin of the bridegroom.

MOUNT HOLYOKE RALLY FOR ENDOWMENT FUND

BAZAAR AND DANCE FOR RUSSIAN RELIEF

Invitations will be issued this week for a bazaar and afternoon dance in the Plaza, April 28 and 29, for the benefit of the American Central Committee for Russian Relief. Miss Gregory Invalsky is chairman of the committee of arrangements, and Mrs. T. J. Oakley Rhinelander has charge of entertainment. Mrs. Mathanel Thayer Robb will marshal a group of debutantes who will appear in Russian costumes. Other members of the committee are Mrs. Charles H. Brandon, Mrs. John D. Prince, Mrs. William H. Rockhill, Mrs. Frederic Coudert and Mrs. J. Norman deR. Whitehouse.

The bazaar has been undertaken to aid in introducing into this country the handiwork of Russian refugees, with a view to establishing a permanent market for this work so as to enable the cooperative to become self-supporting. This mission cross-stitched linens, children's dresses made by peasant workers, rare dolls wearing costumes typical of various provinces in Russia and such work will be sold. The proceeds will go directly to the refugee workrooms from which the goods came. These workrooms for the most part are in Paris, Switzerland and Warsaw. The women who are doing the work are members of the educated classes, many of them wives of former officials and of professional men who are now penniless. Russian nightshade music has been obtained for the dance. There will be Russian tea, Russian cigarettes and Russian decorations. Tickets may be obtained from members of the committee.

NOVEL FEATURES FOR CAMOUFLEURS' BALL

Details of the Bal des Camoufleurs at the Biltmore Friday evening by the Everitt Hester Post of the American Legion have been completed by Mr. William D. Foster, chairman of the committee on arrangements. These details, however, leave undiscovered the surprises which will be disclosed during the evening as characteristic of the camouflage inventiveness of the members of the post. There are promised a "side show" and other unusual features. The object for which the ball is given is for the benefit of the Legion sick and wounded men.

The personnel of the pageant, which will begin at 12:30, is complete and includes as "ladies of the court at Aten" Misses Maud V. Burnside, Marjorie Daingerfield, Virginia de Haven, Suzanne Durivier, Isabelle Goode, Katherine Gossler, Ethel Hays, Beatrice Holt, Dorothy Macready, Elizabeth Merchant, Isabelle MacPherson, Beatrice Post, Olga Serdobin, Rosamond Upham and Margaret Wallace. Miss Nell Chaloux and Carl and Miss Harriet Hooter will represent dancers before the king. Frank Murray and Chandler Cudlipp will enact the "mysterious horse" and the king, and Messrs. A. C. Eldredge and Chalif will appear as courtiers.
